DECEITFUL CHINAMEN.

How They Delude the Emperor with Tales of Victory.

A TERRIBLE FAMINE IMMINENT.

Not Enough Rice on Hand to Feed the People for Six Weeks—Forced Surrender by the United States Consul of Two Alleged Japanese Spies.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 24.—The following has been received here by the steamer Victoria from the several correspondents of the Associated Press:

YOKOHAMA, Sept 6.—The governor of Canton has issued a decree forbidding all people under his authority to purchase or use goods of Japanese manufacture.

An insurrection has broken out at Chang Shan, in the Suang Tung province, sufficiently formidable to beat back the detachment of troops sent to quell the disturbance. There is no evidence that the outbreak has any political significance, though hints to that effect appear in the Chinese newspapers. The general distress in the neighborhood and the appearance of a famine is sufficient for popular disorders in more than one locality.

Fears are expressed in the north of China that the supply of rice will be insufficient, not only for the people at large, but even for the demands of the army and navy. The grand canal route from the south rice growing districts is blocked above Chin Kiang, and doubts have arisen as to the practicability of importing grain by sea. By a singular error of judgment the Pekin government has included rice in lists of contraband articles, circumstances which would be turned heavily to the disadvantage of European ships had they not since received an order that the grain shipped in neutral vessels must not be considered contraband.

Then under this ruling the difficulty of securing ships for the service is great, and the conveyance offered to the Chinese troops in Corea across the Gulf of Pechili is completely cut off by the Japanese cruisers. Thus far, however, the Chinese forces have subsisted mainly upon the products of the regions they occupy. In the middle of August it was admitted by officials in Pekin that northern granaries contained only food enough to meet the ordinary requirements of six weeks.

The case of two alleged Japanese spies who have been given up by the United States consul general at Shanghai to almost certain death, at the hands of the Chinese arouses much attention and causes no little ill feeling among Americans and Europeans in China. These two young men had for some time been pursuing their studies in Shanghai, and like the majority of the Japanese residents, were in the habit of wearing Chinese dress. With the idea of serving their country in a non-definite way they undertook, at the outbreak of war to collect information which they thought would be useful to their government.

What they gave to the government has not transpired, but it is charged they made drawings of defenses in connection with which they were arrested by police officers in the French quarter of the city. Upon the Japanese consul it was reported Monday that the Chinese authorities had decided to hand over the two men to the Chinese authorities, and that the French consul, to whom they appealed for protection, could not interfere. But that subterfuge did not rescue the young men from the unfortunate position.

They were handed over to the French consul to the American consul general, in spite of the protests and demands of the Chinese government which insisted upon their surrender. Mr. Jernaghan, consul general, soon discovered that the suspected men had no connection with the Japanese authorities, and that they acted wholly upon their responsibilities. It is understood that after due investigation he was disposed to ship them to Japan, but on reporting the incident to Washington he received peremptory instructions to deliver them to Chinese custody.

The ordinary procedure with accused foreigners who have no consular representative is to bring them before a mixed court under the court of a chief magistrate and foreign safety, but no one believes the prescribed course will be followed in the present case, unless strong demonstration is made by several consuls and supported by ministers at Pekin against the removal of the prisoners from the settlement.

The Chinese imperial family has been persuaded that the route of the army was one brilliant victory, and Nichi, who figured in the preliminary fight at Song Nwan, has received a present of 20,000 taels direct from the sovereign, and General Yeh, who was in command and who has been placed in full control of the troops in Corea, with promotion to the rank of field marshal, has been honored by a special decree, in which the emperor eulogizes in these words:

"When General Yeh vanquished the foe at Asan the empress manifested her favor by bestowing upon him 20,000 tales. Now he memorializes that he left Asan with 10,000 men, fighting his way through the Japanese army, of which he slaughtered 1,000, losing only 500 of his own followers. We hereby proclaim Yeh's bravery and the valor of those who served under him. Let him send us a list of all his officers, that we may forthwith promote them, and also a list of the killed, that we may confer bounties on their families."

Supplemental to the above an edict has been published, dated Aug 26 consequent upon the latest dispatches received by the emperor from General Yeh. That officer has at last found it expedient to inspect his army and inform his sovereign that after the battle at Asan, which he still claims as a victory, he was surrounded by such overwhelming numbers of Japanese, after fighting desperately for six hours and inflicting frightful slaughter upon the enemy, that he was compelled to retreat and carry the remains of his army to a new rendezvous at Ping Yanghuea.

He humbly begs that he be severely censured for his failure to destroy the Japanese forces, but the emperor proclaims that since he was able to escape, though hemmed in on all sides by an enemy several times larger than his own, and to inflict a heavier loss than he himself suffered, therefore his merit is sufficient to compensate for any inability on his part, and "his request for censure is graciously refused."

But the announcement also comes from Pekin that General Yeh had been relieved from the command in Corea recently conferred, and is replaced by an officer of superior rank.

ANOTHER MINE CAVE IN

It Results in the Destruction of Twenty-six Houses at Duryea, Pa.

PITTSTON, Pa., Sept. 24.—An extensive and disastrous cave in occurred at the mining town of Duryea. Five acres of ground sank and twenty six dwelling houses were wrecked.

Part of the town is situated over the mines owned and operated by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company. The robbing of pillars had endangered the mine, and there were fears of a cave in. Work proceeded as usual, however, and the 500 men and boys were digging away on Friday.

During the night there was a rumbling noise, followed by the creaking of buildings as they settled or fell.

The 150 people in the doomed houses were aroused by the rocking and fled from their homes for safety. As the buildings are all of wood, there were no crumbling walls.

The earth over an area of five acres settled two feet. The houses affected were twisted or partially upset from their foundations.

When the cave in took place it was followed by the flooding of mines. This entailed a loss of thousands of dollars to the owners, and indirectly to the miners. The colliery cannot be worked, and the 500 employes will be idle until the water can be pumped out.

Newark Hatters Victorious.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 24.—The Union Hat Makers, 1,500 strong, determined to join forces with the United Hatters, and ordered a general strike for today. Four of the largest manufacturers at once signified their willingness to accede to the demands of the strikers, and work was today resumed in their factories. That means practically the end of the strike, with a victory for the workmen. Today only 1,000 men and 200 women are out, and it is believed that their employers will be induced to surrender within a few days.

He told the court that his money had taken wings, and he was compelled to do farm work to make a living.

BIG FIRE IN PORTLAND, ORE.

It Destroyed $1,500,000 Worth of Property and Probably Three Lives.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 24.—The most disastrous fire in the history of this city broke out at 4:30 yesterday afternoon in the dock of the Pacific Coast Elevator company, and raged for three hours, destroying property valued at nearly $1,500,000. All day long a heavy wind had been blowing, and nine alarms had been turned in. The fire department was scattered about the city looking after the small fires when an alarm from the elevator was rung in. The elevator contained nearly a million bushels of wheat, all of which was destroyed.

When the engines arrived the fire was beyond control, and in half an hour from the time it started, the docks for half a mile were on fire. Nothing could be done but let the fire burn itself out.

The new plant of the Portland and General Electric company, which had just arrived from Lynn, Mass., was standing in the Terminal yards on the cars, not having been unloaded. The plant occupied the entire train, and the machinery was of the most expensive kind, most of which was destroyed and the remainder badly damaged. Two hundred freight cars, eighty of which were loaded, were destroyed. The Oregon Railway and Navigation docks held 1,500 tons of freight, consisting of wool, salmon, general merchandise and cement, all of which was destroyed with the dock. There were stored on the dock about 12,000 cases of salmon from the lower Columbia river and Puget sound, awaiting shipment to the east. It was valued at about $40,000, and was partly insured.

The large steamer Williamette Chief, moored at the yard, took fire and was burned. She was used as a tow and was valued at about $45,000.

Three men are supposed to have perished in the elevator. Charles Anderson, a man named Brown and one named Murray were seen at an upper story window, and it is thought all were burned.

Fatal Election Riot.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept 24.—A riot occurred at Gatlinburg, Tenn., Saturday night between the partisans of John C. Houk and Henry Gibson, rival Republican candidates for congress. While Congressman Houk was addressing a large audience in the Baptist church several of Gibson's friends attempted to howl him down, and a fight began. Avery Goddell, leader of the Gibsons, had his skull crushed from blows from the butt of the pistol, and Redmond Maples, who had been summoned by a deputy sheriff, also injured.

Madrid's First Protestant Bishop.

MADRID, Sept 24.—With all the imposing ceremony of the church the Most Reverend Lord Plunkett, archbishop of Dublin, yesterday consecrated the Protestant church in this city and also consecrated the Rev Senor Cabrera as the first Protestant bishop of Madrid. It is expected that the elevation of Senor Cabarera to the bishopric will cause a sensation in the Catholic world.

SWEPT BY A TORNADO.

Disastrous Effects of Its Visit in Iowa and Minnesota.

TERRIBLE WORK OF THE WIND.

A Funnel Shaped Cloud Which Carried Everything Before It—The Loss of Life and Property Not Yet Fully Known, but Will be Very Heavy.

ST. PAUL, Sept 24.—By a tornado that swept through this state and Iowa at least fifty lives were wiped out and thousands of dollars worth of property was wrecked. The storm assumed a cyclonic character west of northern Iowa in Palo Alto or Clay county, extending eastward through Kossuth and Hancock counties, northeast through Cerro Gordo, Worth and Mitchell counties into Minnesota, continuing through Mower and Olmstead counties and spending its force in Winona county without leaving Minnesota.

Reports from Iowa show that Emmettsburg and the surrounding country suffered severely, and that several were killed and many seriously injured. In Kossuth county many dwellings were blown down, and two deaths are reported. Parts of Hancock county were also devastated, and three deaths are reported near Brett. North Cerro Gordo was struck and several people are missing there. Malby and Plymouth were in the track of the wind.

In Minnesota three people were killed at Leroy, and the whole eastern part of the town was badly damaged, the loss being fully $150,000. The tornado struck Leroy from the southeast. The storm first struck the Milwaukee depot there, demolishing it. J. F. Trask's two story store was crushed in, causing a loss of $2,000. Three elevators and three warehouses on the Milwaukee line were demolished. The Union Opera house fell in on a dancing party and two dead bodies were taken out. During the storm a fire broke out, destroying a hotel and three stores. Eighteen people who sought shelter in one of the demolished houses were severly hurt and one woman will die.

Lowther, a small town near Leroy, is wiped out of existence. Spring Valley suffers heavy losses, and three were killed and forty or fifty badly injured there. The storm then passed in a northeasterly direction, crossing the Root river and striking north of Preston, through the county of Fillmore, north of Rushford and the village of Homer, four miles south of Winona, destroying several houses. Heavy winds are reported from other parts of the state out of the line of the tornado.

George W. Beavers, of Algona, Ia., had just returned from the county fair with his wife and three children when the tornado struck the house and demolished it completely. Two whole family was buried in the ruins. A loaded freight car standing on the side track at the Algona station was set in motion by the wind and ran out on the main track and down the grade east for about a mile, where it came into collision with a heavily loaded coal train. Engineer John Humphrey and Fireman Charles McEldoon and the brakemen jumped. The engineer and fireman were very seriously injured.

The train struck the Cotter residence, three miles northeast of Osage, Ia., demolishing the house and farm buildings. At the same place Mrs. P. Lonergan's house was razed, and she was blown several rods into a hay lot, where she was passed up dead. Her daughter was badly injured. It destroyed P. R. Herbert's dwelling killing Mrs. Herbert and two children, and then struck F. Perry's house, killing his daughter Anna, and it is thought fatally injuring several others.

At Burt, Ia., it is definitely known that eight people were killed and several injured, and a large number of farm houses and barns were blown down and destroyed.

Burr Oak, Ia., a village four miles northeast of Osage, was destroyed. Thirteen farm houses in the vicinity were totally demolished, even fences and stumps of trees being blown away and uprooted.

North of Mason City, Ia., four persons were battered to death by falling timbers, and nine badly injured are not expected to live. At the farm of David Haddow the house was lifted in the air over a grove of trees, landed in a cornfield, then swept back against the trees, smashing it to bits and killing Haddow and his wife. A lad 15 years old was blown three-fourths of a mile away. He still lives.

At the farm of D. E. McKercher, three miles west of Manley, his 12-year-old son and his hired man, Louis Gravgaald, were killed.

Three miles north of Wesley, Kossuth county, J. Bingham's house was overturned and set afire. The inmates had a narrow escape. There were a total of fourteen killed in the vicinity of Mason City so far as heard from.

The storm struck near Crystal Lake. At Britt, Hancock county, two persons are known to have been killed and several were seriously injured.

A FUNNEL SHAPED CLOUD

It Carried Death and Destruction to the People of Algona.

ALGONA, Ia., Sept 24.—Yesterday was a day of sorrow for Kossuth county. Nineteen funerals were held and others will be held this afternoon. The death list in the county is now known to reach eighteen, and at least six will die. The injured are reported as thirty-nine in number.

Professor A. J. Lilly, of Northern Iowa Normal school, came in from Garner and reports thirteen dead in Ellington township. Coffins for the dead are piled up at every station, and scenes of the wildest grief are being enacted. The storm as witnessed in this place was one of indescribable grandeur. A funnel shaped cloud of inky blackness swept along to the northeast, illuminated by almost continuous dashes of lightning and a roar of thunder that was deep and continuous. The opera house was packed with people to witness a popular play, and a panic was almost occasioned by the warring elements.

Robert Stevenson, living about four miles north of Whittemore, was the first victim. He was hit in several places and was fatally injured. His grove looked as though it had been mowed down by a scythe. Calvin Barrack's house, on the Henry Durant place, was made into kindling wood in an instant, and all of the fourteen occupants but two children were injured. Mrs. Barrack was hurt in the back by timber, and her spine was so badly injured that her body and lower limbs were paralyzed. A 6-year-old boy named Charles Lee was hit on the head and will die. The house of Fred Pompe was completely demolished, but his wife and five children came out of the wreck unhurt. The force of the wind was such that barbed wire was stripped from the posts.

At George Holman's the roof of the house went, leaving the walls standing, and the whole family was carried up from between the walls and away about twenty rods, one of the children being killed. M. W. Ferguson's family was carried through the air, and all but one landed in a willow hedge. The baby went a little further and was found seated on a piece of the roof. The wife of Swan Peterson had her skull cut open in two places, and some exposed parts of her head were literally packed with sand, plaster, hair and grass.

Particulars are coming in all the time which indicate that half of the terrors of the cyclone has not been told. The scene of desolation was visited all day by great crowds, every available conveyance being chartered. The devastation of property will not be less than $100,000. Most of the farmers were well to do, with snug bank accounts, and others were wealthy, but numbers of the victims who were renters lost everything, some of them even losing their families. The permanently crippled will make a long list.

The wires are down and news is hard to get or send.

GENERAL EZETA GOES FREE.

The Ex-Vice President of Salvador Cannot be Extradited.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 24.—Ex-Vice President Antonio Ezeta, of Salvador, who was detained here pending extradition proceedings, has not been held for extradition, as his offenses were on Saturday judged to be purely political. His fellow exiles were likewise exonerated.

It will be remembered that Ezeta, with Generals Colloch, Jeffers, Bolanos and Bastanente, took refuge on board the United States ship Bennington when driven from Salvador. The authorities were at first disposed to allow Captain Thomas, of the Bennington, to use his advices reached Washington from Salvador asking the authorities to hold Ezeta on the charge of appropriating to his own use the funds of the Salvadorean treasury. Therefore when he arrived at San Francisco on the Bennington he and his friends were arrested by Marshal Baldwin and four deputies, who boarded the ship.

In addition to being accused of misappropriating funds he was charged with murder and arson.

Mrs. Drayton Not Shut Out.

TRENTON, Sept 24.—The published statement that the time for Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton to file an answer in the divorce suit against her expired Sept 6, is only true provided no extension was granted by the chancellor or vice chancellor or mutually agreed to by counsel on both sides. Even in this case however, a defense is not necessarily shut out, as the chancellor can allow it to be made at any time if satisfied with the reasons given for the delay. There is no record here of an extension having been granted, but it does not follow that none was granted.

New York Shirtmakers on Strike

NEW YORK, Sept 24.—The Hebrew speaking shirtmakers of New York, to the number of nearly 8,000, went on a strike yesterday, and 200 shops which had not in the past year or more known a Sabbath quiet, except on Saturdays, were deserted. At a meeting resolutions were adopted declaring that before the strikers go back to work the contractors and manufacturers must raise wages on piece work to the old scale, which is double the present one.

Found a Skeleton in Fire Ruins

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Sept. 24.—Some days ago the large barn on the Lott farm, three miles east of here, was burned by a mysterious fire. The tenant, John Smith, insisted that the barn must have been set on fire. Constable Warner while searching in the ruins on Saturday came across a portion of the skeleton of a human being. The supposition is that a tramp crawled into the barn with a pipe, and accidentally set the place on fire.

The Doctors Endorse It.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS

No Selection of a Candidate for Governor as Yet.

GAYNOR OF BROOKLYN LEADS.

John Boyd Thatcher, Frederick F. Cook and Senator Hill Also Mentioned, Though It Is Said the Senator Will Not Permit the Use of His Name.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 24.—A situation more strange than any that has yet confronted the Democratic party, and the like of which has never been seen by any of the assembled party leaders, is presented here today, within twenty-four hours of the time set for the nomination of a candidate for the office of governor of the state of New York. No selection of a candidate has yet been made, and while one name is prominently mentioned here, no one person can be said to have anything like a mortgage on the nomination. Nothing can be indulged in but speculation. It is true that Judge Gaynor's name is on every lip, but when it is known that the delegates here number less than a fourth of the whole number it is easy to see that events of the day may change the whole current.

So far there are four candidates mentioned for governor, Judge Gaynor of Brooklyn, John Boyd Thatcher of Albany, Frederick F. Cook of Rochester and Senator David B. Hill. Daniel S. Lockwood, of Buffalo, was mentioned, but it is said by those who know today that he is practically out of the race, and that Mr. Sheehan's support, which may dominate Erie, will be thrown towards Frederick Cook. Every effort will be made, however, to induce Mr. Cook to accept the second place upon the ticket in case either Judge Gaynor or Senator Hill is a nominee. As to Mr. Hill as a candidate, Lieutenant Governor Sheehan said last evening:

"I conversed with Senator Hill on the matter Saturday afternoon, before leaving Albany for Saratoga. He not only said that he would not be a candidate, but insisted that I should not broach the subject to him any more, and hoped that no further mention of it would be made."

Notwithstanding the assertion of Mr. Sheehan, there are some people here who profess to believe that Senator Hill may yet be induced to accept. With this feeling prevailing Tammany, at its meeting this afternoon will, at the suggestion of him to be a candidate.

"Would Mr. Hill make a good candidate" was asked of Charles S. Fairchild.

"I must decline to answer that question," said Mr. Fairchild. "I am not here in the interest of any candidate, but simply to see that all Democrats have a representation in the convention."

Mr. Shepard, who represents the same faction in Kings county as Mr. Fairchild represents in New York, was asked if there was anything new in their contest. He said:

"Nothing except what the Associated Press has already sent out. We shall appear before the committee on credentials and ask that our whole delegation be seated. So far as nominations are concerned we are for Judge Gaynor."

For lieutenant governor there are three names mentioned this morning—Frederick Cook of Rochester, John J. Linson of Ulster county and Jacob B. Cantor of New York, with the chances seemingly largely in favor of the second named.

For judge of the court of appeals only one candidate is mentioned this morning—Judge Titus, of Erie—although there is a rumor that the name of Judge A. B. Parker will be presented by his friends.

There was a little hitch in the obtaining of the convention hall for the holding of the convention. The Unitarian conference, who began their meeting here this forenoon, say that the hall belongs to them, and that they have made no arrangements with the Democratic leaders to give it up. In the Unitarian church yesterday it was announced that the Lord's Supper would be administered in the convention hall at 11:30 tomorrow morning. The party leaders, however, declare that they secured the hall through proper authorities, and it is believed that the little difficulty will be amicably settled.

Cheering for Clothing Workers.

BOSTON, Sept. 24.—The executive council of the striking garment makers held an all day meeting yesterday. Twenty-two contractors appeared before them, ready to sign agreements, but they were denied on the ground that an agreement signed on Sunday would not be legal. Several of the largest manufacturers have instructed their contractors to pay the rate demanded by the strikers, and it is now confidently expected that the strike will end by Wednesday in a complete victory for the employees.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill. had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Sdeaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, and the doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box of Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at McMonagle & Rogers Drug store.

ROYALTY AND THE LAW.

The Queen of England and Her Son as Candidates For the Criminal Dock.

The bazaar in aid of the fund for rebuilding the Crathie church, near Balmoral, was held under the patronage of the queen, who also gave two plaited straw baskets made by her own royal hands. These precious presents were naturally made much of, and with the queen's approval were disposed of by a raffle, although the gaming laws distinctly specify raffling as illegal. The question arises, Has her majesty, by aiding and abetting it, made herself liable to prosecution before a magistrate? Lawyers have no doubt about it, but it does not follow that the law will be set in motion. The British constitution would scarcely survive the shock of the spectacle of the empress-queen in a criminal dock and possibly fined 40 shillings or a month at hard labor.

But while nobody is disposed to take action against the queen for conniving at a mild form of gambling plenty of people would not be sorry to see her son, lieutenant general, his royal highness the Duke of Connaught, tried by court martial for risking the lives of the men under his command. The duke is commander in chief of the Aldershot district. On Wednesday he and his wife went to the military balloon ground in order to christen a new balloon to be named after the duchess. The weather had been threatening thunderstorms, and the atmosphere was heavily charged with electricity. Nevertheless it would never do to disappoint the duchess. So, just as the storm was about to break, the balloon was sent up 300 feet and anchored by a steel rope held by three sappers. The result, as might have been expected, was that the lightning struck the balloon, rushed down the steel conductor and horribly mangled the unfortunate sappers. The question every one asked is why the ceremony was not postponed, seeing that danger was palpable to the meanest understanding. The demand for a court martial is very general and will probably be acceded to, but it may be safely predicted that the prisoner will not be the general commanding, but some inferior officer.—London Cor. New York Sun.

BLASTING THE PALISADES.

Contractors Destroying Their Beauty to Get Out Granite Blocks.

Until comparatively recently the Palisades escaped the ruthless hands of contractors and quarrymen, despite the fact that there are few spots in the country where richer deposits of granite are to be found. A few quarries within the last five years have sprung up at Fort Lee, but they have all been located away back from the Palisades, and the front of these beautiful hills have been unmolested. Now, however, a firm of contractors, by exploding dynamite, [illegible] excavations in front of the Palisades, which will in the course of a very few months transform the historic Palisades from things of beauty to ordinary stone quarries.

Nothing that the lovers of natural scenery can do will in any way stop the destructive work from going on. The Palisades are private property, and that part of them which is at present being torn open by high explosives has been leased by the owners to contractors, whose love of the beautiful pales into insignificance beside their business instinct.

Aside from the destruction of the Palisades, the work going on in the quarries at Fort Lee is of moment on account of the enormous amount of dynamite which is being exploded there. People marveled at the explosion of 500 pounds of dynamite in a projectile thrown by a pneumatic gun at Sandy Hook some weeks ago. Six times that much was exploded at Fort Lee on Thursday at noon and again on Friday at the same hour, and although it was not thrown from a gun neither did it explode in the water, but in a solid bed of granite. The terrific force of these two explosions cannot be imagined by anybody who was not in Fort Lee to hear them, or who has not since visited the quarries to see their effect. The little village of Fort Lee shook as though an earthquake had visited it, and strangers in the place who were unaware that blasting was going on in the vicinity were firmly convinced that some convulsion of nature had occurred.—New York Sun.

The Fires Will Make Work For Many.

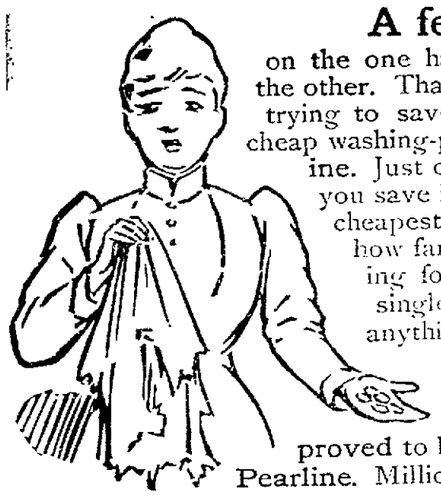
"What is the probable loss from the fire on pine stumpage throughout the state?" was asked of a leading logger.

"The loss is in one sense nominal," replied he. "You understand, fire does not burn the body of a pine tree. It only burns off the bark and foliage. The trunk of the burned tree is as good as ever it was, with this exception—the tree, after it is burned, must be cut the succeeding winter, else it will become worm eaten and worthless.

"This fire is a blessing in disguise to labor. Every owner of burned pine stumpage must go to work this coming winter and cut every foot of it, and many of these owners are forced to cut perhaps hundreds of millions of feet of stumpage they would not otherwise have cut for years to come. They are, you see, forced to employ immense crews of men they would not otherwise have had use for."—St. Paul Globe.

The Gracious Czar.

The czar has just issued his approval of the institution of dueling in the army. The commander in chief at Kiev, in issuing the new dueling code, says: "The czar has conferred upon us a new mark of his imperial grace in granting us the right to defend with arms in our hands that which is most precious to all of us—our honor. This gracious act on the part of his majesty makes it our duty, still more than heretofore, so to regulate our conduct and manners alike in official and social intercourse as to obviate all inimical misunderstandings and frivolous quarrels."—Moscow Letter.



A few Pennies

on the one hand—ruined garments on the other. That will be the result of your trying to save money by using poor, cheap washing-powders, instead of Pearline. Just consider. How much could you save in a year if you bought the cheapest and most worthless? And how far would it go toward paying for the things ruined in a single month? You can't save anything by buying cheap washing-powders. The way to save money in washing is to use what has been proved to be absolutely safe. That is Pearline. Millions use it. 417

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself [illegible] of his age and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess,

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy ank secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

HOW WE WALK.

The Muscles Used and the Mechanical Work That They Do.

The chief muscles concerned in walking are those in the calf and back of leg, which, by pulling up the heel, also pull up the bones of the foot connected with it, and then the whole body, the weight of which is passed on through the bones of the leg. When walking, the trunk is thrown forward so that it would fall down prostrate were not the right foot planted in time to support it. The calf muscles are helped in this action by those on the front of the trunk and legs, which contract and pull the body forward, and the trunk, slanting forward when the heel is raised by the calf muscles, the whole body will be raised and pushed forward and upward. This advancement of each leg is effected partly by muscular action, the muscles used being (1) those on the front of the thigh, bending it forward on the pelvis; (2) the hamstring muscles, which slightly bend the leg on the thigh; (3) the muscles on the front of the leg, which raise the front of the foot and toes, preventing the latter, in swinging forward, from hitching in the ground.

When one foot has reached the ground, the action of the other has not ceased. There is another point in walking. The body is constantly supported and balanced on each leg alternately and therefore on only one at once. Hence there must be some means for throwing the center of gravity over the line of support formed by the bones of each leg, as it supports the weight of the body. This is done in various ways, and hence the difference in the walk of different people. There may be slight rotation at the hip joint, bringing the center of gravity of the body over the foot of this side. This "rocking" motion of the trunk and thigh is accompanied by a movement of the whole trunk and leg over the foot planted on the ground and is accompanied by a compensating outward movement at the hip. The body rises and swings alternately from one side to the other as its center of gravity comes alternately over one or the other leg, and the curvature of the spinal bones is altered with the varying position of the weight.—London Hospital.

THE POWER OF POETRY.

Scott's Description of the Chase and What the Ordinary Man Would Have Said.

Take, as a single instance of the power of poetry, Walter Scott's opening lines in the "Lady of the Lake," where he describes the chase of the stag. The stag escapes and evades his pursuers, but what a picture the great poet has put into words!

Reduced to prose the ordinary observer and writer would have said, "They chased the stag several miles, but lost him in the Trosachs." He could not possibly have said in prose:

The antlered monarch of the waste
Sprang from his heathery couch in haste,
The dewdrop from his flanks he shook;
Like crested leader, proud and high,
Tossed his beamed frontlet to the sky;
A moment gazed adown the dale,
A moment snuffed the tainted gale,
A moment listened to the cry
That thickened as the chase drew nigh.
Then as the headmost foes appeared,
With one brave bound the copse he cleared,
And stretching forward free and far
Sought the wild heaths of Uam Var.

The poet began his picture with an incident that only a poet would have thought worthy of words, but what a picture the few words make!

The stag at eve had drunk his fill
Where danced the moon on Monan's rill,
And deep his midnight lair had made
In lone Glenartney's hazel shade.

Fire Easily Obtained.

The average civilized man would be hard put to it if he were compelled to start a fire without matches, tinder box or burning glass. But Lieutenant von Hohnel describes an African chief as not only accomplishing this feat, but doing it with quickness and ease. The traveler had asked him to show his skill.

It was really wonderful, in view of the moisture laden atmosphere, with what rapidity he did as I had requested.

The materials employed were such as we saw wherever we went—two simple bits of wood, one flat about six inches long and not quite an inch wide, with a row of grooves on one side, the other about 12 inches long and of the thickness and shape of a lead pencil.

The longer piece, fixed in one of the grooves of the shorter piece, was held tightly between the palms of the hand and whirled rapidly round and round. In a few seconds the wood dust which was produced by the friction, and which fell through the grooves, began to smoke. This dust was carefully nursed into a blaze, which was fed with fine grass and bits of cotton stuff.

The whole thing is done so quickly that our men, even the lazy Wasungu, always employed this method on short halts for lighting their pipes.—Youth's Companion.

No Word Like the Doctors.

Mr. Sydney Holland enlivened the guests at the annual festival of Poplar hospital by relating an incident which occurred within the walls of that institution. A man was brought in who was thought to be dead. His wife was with him. One of the doctors said, "He is dead," but the man raised his head and said, "No, I am not dead yet," whereupon his wife admonished him, saying, "Be quiet; the doctor ought to know best."—London Echo.

Ominous of Unpleasantness.

"Mrs. Blimber is very nervous about there being 13 at the table tonight."

"Does she think something unpleasant will happen?"

"Yes. She only has a dozen knives and forks."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A FROST FOR A FROST.

Colonel Slupsky Puts a Gentleman on Ice to Take the Chill Off.

The Sabbath calm that usually reigns seven days in the week at the Hon. Jim Cronin's establishment at Twenty-first and Market was violently disturbed early in the week by Colonel Abe Slupsky, the school board reformer, who attempted to kill, murder and slay Mr. F. C. Howard by freezing him to death in Mr. Cronin's icebox. Colonel Slupsky dropped into the saloon with a couple of friends just as Mr. Howard, who seems to have been blowing himself, invited all hands to take something. When he saw the colonel ranging up to the bar, Mr. Howard looked at him severely and said, "Nay, nay, Pauline; it's off!"

"What's off?" queried Slupsky, who had not been aware of Howard's generous intentions.

"Your graft. We are not playing ringers on this track. You're ruled off the course. In other words, such drinks as you pays for you gets; not otherwise. See?"

"I was paralyzed," Abe confided to a friend. "I'd never laid eyes on the fellow in my life before, nor he on me, but I couldn't stand a play of that sort, you know. Great Scott! If I had all the drinks that are coming to me! Well, anyhow, I put a quarter in the darky's hand and whispered him to open that long, low icebox Jim has over against the wall and leave it open, and then I walked up to Mr. Howard and said:

"'I don't know who you are, sir, but you mustn't leave me out of a general treat this way. It hurts my feelings.'

"He said he'd see me gormed first, and with that I caught him, and before he could even begin to cuss any I had him in that icebox, with the cover down. Well, sir, I thought I'd die. He was the most surprised man I ever saw in my life. I guess that icebox was about the last place on this earth he thought he was heading for when he began his play.

"Well, I went to the door and stood there, although at first I intended to keep him there until he agreed to treat me. While they were getting him out and peeling the things off him somebody asked him what he wanted to insult Congressman Frank that way for.

"'Great Scott! Was that Congressman Frank?' he says. 'Let me see him,' and he came to me, with his hand out, saying: 'Congressman, you must forgive me. I had never seen you before, and I'm sorry that I insulted you.'

"I stood on my congressional dignity awhile and asked what my constituents would think of it if they heard I was grafting for a drink, but finally I forgave him, and we all went in and had something. I invited him to come down and see me at my office in the Turner building, and when he calls I guess Nat Frank and he will have a nice time getting themselves straightened out.

"I'd give a dollar to see the interview between 'em."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LABOUCHERE KICKS.

What Some Folks Call Generosity He Declares Is a "Monstrous Job."

The queen's generosity in providing palaces and other residences for foreign princes and princesses at the expense of the British taxpayer is again rousing the ire of Radicals, says a London letter. The scandal has hardly subsided over the thrifty pensioners of her majesty, who have been turning Hampton Court palace into a boarding house, when now it is announced that she has been pleased to grant the studhouse, also at Hampton Court, to Princess Frederica of Hanover and her husband, with the benefit of the survivorship. The princess is one of the wealthiest personages in Europe, and she only rarely comes to England for a brief visit. It is announced that the studhouse is to be extensively repaired and improved for her occasional occupation. This moves Mr. Labouchere to remark:

"If this arrangement has really been made, it is a most monstrous job, and one of a peculiarly objectionable kind, as during the reigns of George IV and William IV parliament protested so strongly against such reversionary grants that they were altogether discontinued of late years. However, the queen has privately revived the system of giving royal residences with survivorship, and I am informed that nearly every warrant which has recently been granted has contained the obnoxious reversionary clause. The next sovereign of these realms will have to live a long time before he has either houses or apartments to give away.

"I believe in at least one case the queen has signed a warrant granting what really was an official residence to the wife of the present occupant in case she survives her husband."

Hardships In the Goldfields.

Americans who are thinking to try their fortune in the new Eldorado of western Australia should consider some of the conditions of life in the new goldfields before starting on a fool's errand, says a correspondent. Recent letters are full of doleful tales of hardship. Not more than five men in a hundred are lucky enough to strike it rich, and the region is already vastly overpopulated. The lack of water is the greatest drawback. Water commands 25 cents a gallon at Coolgardie, 37 cents at Hannens and 50 cents elsewhere. In the gold district many horses have died of thirst by the roadside. Five hundred men at Coolgardie are anxious to get work at any wages.

The Record Price For Pictures.

Eleven thousand guineas (something over $55,000) is now the record price paid in an auction room in London for a picture. This amount was realized at Christie's for Sir Joshua Reynolds' portrait of Lady Betty Delmse, sister of the Earl of Carlisle, with her children, a picture which is well known through engravings. It was put up at 5,000 guineas and was secured by Charles Wertheimer, a dealer, for 11,000 guineas.—London Standard.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three alternate delegates from each Assembly District to a State Convention, to be held at Saratoga Springs, on Tuesday, Sept. 25th, 1894, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

Three thousand Hebrew shirt makers, 1,600 men and 1,400 women, are on strike in New York for better wages. They now make from $4 to $6 a week, and their demand is that the prices for piece work be doubled so that they may make from $9 to $12. The strikers are employed in about 200 shops.

The New York Herald printed, yesterday, eight columns more of advertisements than it did on the corresponding Sunday, last year. There is no surer index of business conditions than the advertising columns of a great metropolitan paper, and the increased demand on the Herald's advertising space is but one of many evidences of the return of confidence and prosperity.

The New York papers are practically agreed that Judge William J. Gaynor, of Brooklyn, will be nominated for Governor at the Democratic Convention, unless he positively refuses to allow the use of his name, and there is little danger of that. He is by all odds the most popular candidate whose name is mentioned and it is confidently believed that his nomination will heal all differences in the Democratic ranks and arouse so much enthusiasm that victory at the polls will be assured.

There is nothing unreasonable in the demand of Tammany Hall that before the Grace-Fairchild faction, the so called State Democracy, is accorded any recognition in the State convention, its representatives shall pledge themselves to unite with the Democratic organization in supporting candidates for local offices. A Democratic organization that goes only half-way in its loyalty, and that is ready to array itself against some of the candidates of its party, is not Democratic enough to be accorded representation in a State convention.

The Democrats of Rockland county got into a grand row, Saturday, at their county caucus to choose delegates to the State convention. Ex-Assemblyman Demarest, of the Hill faction, served a mandamus on Chairman Murphy, of the County Committee, directing that voting should be by ballot. Mandamuses didn't go with Murphy any more than injunctions did with John Y. McKane, and Mr. Murphy, in accordance with party usage, told the crowd to divide on the choice of a chairman of the caucus. Demarest and his adherents then withdrew, claiming that the proceedings were irregular, and elected a delegation to the convention headed by Mr. Demarest. The other wing of the party elected a delegation headed by ex-Assemblyman Finnegan. The fight will be fought to a finish before the Committee on Credentials at Saratoga.

The Watchman says that the Republican triumvirate in Sullivan county politics, Judge Thornton, Ex-Judge Potts and ex-Assemblyman Smith, so completely routed the Couch-Greene faction at the recent county convention that it is very doubtful if they can ever again get control of the party machine. It looks as if they had made the test for official place hostility to Couch, for the candidates nominated for the principal offices,—Krenrich, for Member of Assembly, Murphy, for Sheriff, and Calkins for Superintendent of the Poor, "either openly worked or secretly plotted against the election of Melvin H. Couch for County Judge." After the convention, the county committee was re-organized and Samuel B. Greene turned down and out of the chairmanship, and DeWitt Knapp, a trusted adherent of Thornton, Potts and Smith elected in his place.

LOOKS LIKE GAYNOR.

Senator Hill and Party Leaders Regard Him as the Most Available Candidate —Hill for Temporary Chairman—Unitarians Will Not Give Up Convention Hall—Probable Result of Brooklyn and New York Contests.

BY UNITED PRESS.

SARATOGA, Sept. 24.—The friends of men with booms, Tammanyites and many others, are leaving no stone unturned to accomplish the defeat of the nomination of Judge Gaynor for Governor by the Democratic Convention here, to-morrow, but the whole situation has been thoroughly canvassed by Senator Hill and other party leaders, and they have decided that Judge Gaynor is the most available man.

Delegates are coming rapidly, to day. The State Committee has opened headquarters in the Grand Union.

It is practically settled that Senator Hill will be temporary chairman, and he may be continued as chairman, although there is talk of selecting a Cleveland Democrat for the latter position.

The Unitarians who are holding a convention refused to give up Convention Hall. Their final proposition is to permit the Democrats to meet there and adjourn to some other place, and they offer to subscribe a hundred dollars toward fixing up the old Casino.

After a short opening session for preliminary organization, in Convention Hall, to-morrow, the Democratic Convention will take a recess until Wednesday morning and will then meet in the Casino.

The Shepard Democrats, of Brooklyn, and the Fairchild Democrats, of New York city, will ask recognition. The reorganized Democracy, of Brooklyn, will oppose the admission of the Shepardites and Tammany will make a bitter fight against the State Democracy.

Predictions are that the Brooklyn men will receive partial recognition and that the New York men will be turned down.

OBITUARY.

Mrs Sarah E. Decker.

Mrs. Sarah E. Decker, whose serious illness was mentioned in this paper, died at her home on Sprague avenue, this city, Sunday morning, at 9 30, of diabetes, aged about 55 years. She had been in failing health for nearly a year past, but no serious results were anticipated until about six weeks ago, when she suffered a severe attack of cholera morbus, from which, coupled with her other ailment, she never recovered, and died as stated above. So firm a hold had her disease upon her that she lapsed into unconsciousness Saturday.

Mrs. Decker was the oldest daughter of the late David Crans, for many years Commissioner of Highways in the town of Wallkill. She was born in that town Dec. 7th, 1839. She was married to Jesse F. Decker Aug 25th, 1861. Eight children were the fruit of their union, four boys and four girls. They are Edith, wife of Wm. Perlee; Wesley, an employe of the Press office; Wilmot, employed in the O. & W. car shops; Charley, with the Newburgh News; Anna, wife of Carl H. Brown; Mina C., wife of Abram Scott, and Lorena at home. Jesse F., the oldest son, died when three years old. She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Ruth Crans, of this city, and by one brother, Andrew Crans, of Crystal Run. Four sisters also survive her, viz: Mrs. Vashti Crans, widow of the late Virgil Crans; Mary, wife of John Walker, of Woburn, Mass.; Catherine, wife of Geo. Walker, and Charlotte E., wife of Wm. H. Seacord, of near Washingtonville.

Mrs. Decker was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church, of this city, having united with that church a number of years ago, attending regularly until failing health compelled her to stay at home. She was a devoted Christian mother, seeking to imbue her children with that firm Christian faith that marked her life. She was unselfishly devoted to her children, whom she has lived to see grow to manhood and womanhood, honored and respected. A good woman has gone to her reward.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, at her residence, and will be private.

Mrs. Richard Sheerin.

Mrs. Bridget Markley, wife of ex-Supervisor Richard Sheerin, died at 3 o'clock, this morning, of brain fever, after an illness of only six days, aged thirty-eight years.

Mrs. Sheerin was born in County Longford, Ireland, and there, twenty-three years ago, she was married to Mr Sheerin.

They came to this country immediately after their marriage and took up their residence in Boston. They afterwards resided in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington, and came to this city eighteen years ago.

Mrs. Sheerin is survived by her husband and by four children, Richard J., John J., Fred and Mary: also by two brothers, Patrick, who resides in Auckland, Cal., and Andrew, in Ireland.

Sixteen years ago Mrs. Sheerin took five small children, left helpless by the death of her sister, and has since cared for them as her own. The care of this family was a heavy tax on her strength and vitality, but she never wavered in her duty and great shall be her reward.

Mrs. Sheerin was a faithful wife and devoted mother, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her for her domestic virtues, gentleness, unselfishness and devotion to those dependent upon her. Her death is a great blow to her husband and family.

The funeral notice is published in another column.

BLOODSHED AT THE SUMMIT.

Drunken Tramps Engage in an Ugly Fight—One of Them Badly Cut by a Razor—The Whole Party Arrested—Vain Search for a Tramp Said to Have Been Murdered—Tramps Know Little in Police Court.

A gang of tramps congregated at the Summit, yesterday, and held high carnival over the contents of a quart bottle of alcohol. The fiery liquid soon had them all in fighting condition, and about 6 o'clock officers from this city were summoned, resulting in the capture of six of them, one of whom had been badly cut by a razor in the hands of one of his companions.

They were all very reticent when arraigned before the Recorder, this morning, and the injured man was particularly anxious not to press any charge against his pal.

The Recorder, however, was determined to sift the matter and punish all hands, and the following story was "pumped" out of the crowd:

James Larkin, of 375 West street, New York, came to this city, yesterday morning, and at the Summit met Charles McQuoid, who said his home was "anywhere." The pair had made a trip together on one of the lake boats at Buffalo, last spring, and both had just come from the latter place, but had not traveled in company.

The balance of the sextet, two of whom are mere boys, "dropped in" at the Summit during the day. Some one in the gang having the price of a quart of alcohol, one of the party, (which one, none of them seemed to know,) went to one of the city drug stores and procured the stuff.

They had a good time until the fire water began to get in its work, when Larkin and McQuoid got into an altercation. Here the others seemed to have lost all idea of subsequent events, except one of the boys, named W. M. Searles, of Toledo, Ohio, who said he saw the men clinch and saw a razor in McQuoid's hands.

This razor, Larkin claims as his property, but does not know how McQuoid got possession of it. He swore that McQuoid had cut him with it when he resisted a pretended arrest, McQuoid having told him that he was an officer and was going to arrest him.

Mr. Frank Romer saw the "scrap," and drove at one to this city, and in company with Officers Tyrrel and Walsh, hurried back to the scene of the fight. They arrested four of the men, three of whom they took to the lock-up. The fourth, the injured man, was left in the custody of Officer Walsh until the arrival of the patrol wagon, which had been summoned. Dr. Nelson dressed the man's wounds, which consisted of several slight cuts about the forehead and hands and a long gash under the chin, which required nine stitches to close. The other men were arrested later as witnesses, they having been seen in company with the others.

Considerable excitement was caused by the story of one of the men, who claimed that another tramp had been badly cut and had taken to the woods. A searching party was formed and the crowd scoured the woods for several hours, lanterns in hand, but failed to find any traces of the wounded man.

McQuoid is a repulsive looking tramp, aged about 23. When asked by the Recorder if he had not been in prison, he gave evidence of his familiarity with criminal law by saying "he did not think he was required to answer that question."

After hearing the story as above related, a complaint of assault in the third degree was made out against McQuoid, to which he pleaded not guilty. He said that he was trying to pacify Larkin and took away the razor to keep him from doing harm with it, and in the scrimmage which ensued Larkin was cut.

He claimed that all he wanted was a fair show, and that people who saw the scrap could, if they would, testify that he did not intentionally cut the man.

When brought into court, this afternoon, McQuoid or McCoy, changed his mind and pleaded guilty to the charge of assault in the third degree, and was sentenced to Albany Penitentiary for one year at hard labor.

Larkin pleaded guilty to being disorderly and got six months in the same institution.

George Walker, the third tramp, had a pair of black eyes received in the melee, and on his plea of guilty to disorderly conduct, also received six months.

The fourth man, Richard Williams, of New York, and the boys, Searles, of Toledo and Michael Rielly, of Paterson, were given a severe reprimand and were run out of town.

Was He Poisoned?

Coroner McKinnon, of Delaware county, has begun an investigation into the death of Emmet Chase, a farmer who lived two miles from Trout Creek, and whose death, which occurred, Sept. 9th, rumor has it, was due to poison, administered by members of his own family.

OFF FOR SCRANTON.

Monhagens Leave Town on their Visit to Crystal Hose Co.—Full Ranks and Many Guests.

Monhagen Hose Co. left town on O. and W. train 1, this morning, for Scranton, Pa., where they will take part to-morrow in the annual parade of the fire department as guests of Crystal Hose Company, who were the Monhagens guests last year.

The Monhagens wore linen caps and dusters, as did also the guests, whose names were published Saturday.

The entire party, including Lincoln Post Drum Corps, numbered 70 persons, and others will go on the evening train and be at Scranton in time for to-morrow's parade.

Among those who will go this evening are A. E. McIntyre, C. E. Mance, Geo. K. Wilkin, John W. Conkling, F. S. Garrison, Edward Jakely, Jacob Gunther, Henry Clarke, J. F. Moore, W. H. Hyde, George Jennings, Ira Dorrance and L. S. Wilkison.

On the special car in which the Monhagens traveled was a streamer on which were the words:

"Middletown 1893, Scranton 1894."

Lunch to be served on the train was provided by William Seeholzer, of the Wickham avenue restaurant, and Mr. Jacob Gunther gave the boys a hundred cigars to be smoked after lunch. Each member and guest of the company wore a buttonhole bouquet, the gift of Mr. Isaac Lipfeld.

First and Second Assistant Engineers Higham and Schmitt wore dusters and caps a shade whiter than the members of the company. It is well to distinguish between department and company officers.

The chaplain of Monhagens, Rev. Dr. Robinson, will look after the morals of the company at Scranton. A committee from Crystal Hose will meet the Monhagens at Carbondale.

"NODDING NELLIE."

An Amusing and Interesting Toy Invented by Mr S. M Boyd.

Selchow & Righter, manufacturers and jobbers of toys, are putting on the market, under royalty, a very amusing toy, called "Nodding Nellie," which was invented and patented by ex-Mayor S. M. Boyd, of this city.

"Nodding Nellie" is thus described in the current number of the American Stationer:

"She is of a nervous temperament, being, as some people would say, a 'bundle of springs,' and because she has acquired habits, which, it is feared, are chronic, and of which it will be impossible to break her. For instance, she draws herself together and 'flops' down on the floor. She sits there for a moment or so, and then, after wagging her head anxiously three or four times, as if to warn those [illegible] she springs into the air. 'Nodding Nellie' is, as Artemus Ward would say, an 'Amoosin' cuss.'"

A Modern Beauty

Thrives on good food and sunshine, with plenty of exercise in the open air. Her form glows with health and her face blooms with its beauty. If her system needs the cleansing action of a laxative remedy, she uses the gentle and pleasant liquid Laxative Syrup of Figs.

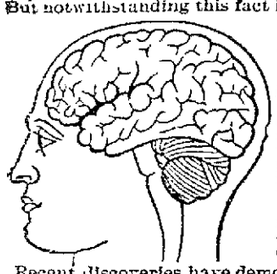
MYSTERIES!

The Nervous System the Seat of Life and Mind. Recent Wonderful Discoveries.

No mystery has ever compared with that of human life. It has been the leading subject of professional research and study in all ages. But notwithstanding this fact it is not generally known that the seat of life is located in the upper part of the spinal cord, near the base of the brain, and so sensitive is this portion of the nervous system that even the prick of a needle will cause instant death.



Recent discoveries have demonstrated that all the organs of the body are under the control of the nerve centers, located in or near the base of the brain, and that when these are deranged the organs which they supply with nerve fluid are also deranged. When it is remembered that a serious injury to the spinal cord will cause paralysis of the body below the injured point, because the nerve force is prevented by the injury from reaching the paralyzed portion, it will be understood how the derangement of the nerve centers will cause the derangement of the various organs which they supply with nerve force.

Two-thirds of chronic diseases are due to the imperfect action of the nerve centers at the base of the brain, not from a derangement originating in the organ itself. The great mistake of physicians in treating these diseases is that they treat the organ rather than the nerve centers which are the cause of the trouble.

DR. FRANKLIN MILES, the celebrated specialist, has profoundly studied this subject for several years, and has made many important discoveries in connection with it, chief among which being the facts contained in the above statement, and that the ordinary methods of treatment are wrong. All headache, dizziness, dullness, confusion, pressure, blues, despair, melancholy, insanity, epilepsy, St. Vitus dance, etc., are nervous diseases no matter how caused. The wonderful success of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is due to the fact that it is based on the foregoing principle.

DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It contains neither opiates nor dangerous drugs.

THE BROTHERS.

It le we out at the dawning of day—
Gray are the hills and a blush on the sky—
Up between fields where the dew frosts lay,
Jack and Harold and I.

Can ever an hour with this compare?
Is ever a bloom like a waking one?
Ho, for the breath of the unwarmed air
That knows not the kiss of the sun!

Over the highway and down the hill
Speed we well like the wings of a bird,
A reddening east and a warming thrill—
The world has awaked and stirred!

A sudden ray and a cock's shrill call,
A salty scent from the sea blown down,
A thought of the work that awaits us all
And yonder the spires of the town!

Back we ride at the closing of day,
Met by the breath that the brier sheds,
And a bird that is flying to west away,
And one star over our heads.

Can ever an hour with this compare,
When the day and the night are almost one,
Filling the sky and the silent air,
Hushed at the death of the sun?

Back 'tween the dewy fields we ride,
Under the deepening heart of the sky,
Passing the bridge and the hill's steep side—
Jack and Harold and I.

And down by the mill will one of us wait,
Wait for the wave of a hand, for a smile,
And over the hill, by a vine clad gate,
Will one of us linger awhile.

But under the stars, in the gathering gloom,
One rideth on, rideth on for a space.
Then, oh, the scent of the white rose bloom,
And the joy in a mother's face!

A BIRTHDAY GIFT.

It might have happened in London or it might not. If any one prefers to localize this story of true love at Liverpool or Glasgow or any other British city where Irish do live, he or she is quite welcome to do so. I am not going to vulgarize a tender idyl by giving with the fidelity of a county court summons the precise town, village or other minute description of the scene where the poetic events to be now told took place.

Mat Casey lodged with Tim Brennan, who occupied a couple of rooms in a small house in a court off a passage in an alley which branched out of a lane in a back street. "Sure you're a gintleman, for you're as good as the pig that pays his rint," Tim used to say to him, and Mat would reply, "True for yez, an it's meself that's proud to be that same." And then, if either happened to have a shilling about him, they would go to the Cobwebs inn and drink it. If in luck, they would perhaps have a fight or two in the course of the night. If things were depressed and people were low spiritedly peaceful, they would in most cases have a fight between themselves and then fraternally pump on each other's heads or repair their faces from the same stock of sticking plaster.

Mat was a traveling tinker, middle aged, jovial, ugly, a fine drinker, a good singer, and, as Tim said, "a dhivil of a poet." Tim was an odd job character—an auction porter and a speculator in small lots. Mat was a widower. Tim had an extensive wife and a scattered family.

At the entrance to the court was a sort of half shop, half shed, with a big room behind and a small one above, where Widow Moloney lived and carried on her business, which consisted in the purchase and sale of anything from an old bedstead to a copyless dictionary and from a broken candlestick to an indistinct oil painting. Her husband had been an attendant at sales and a broker in a humble way.

After the inquest on him—now some 18 months ago—Mrs. Moloney continued the concern. She found it unnecessary to go to auctions, as Tim and others brought their purchases to her, and she had a tolerably ready means of buying and selling, not merely to add from her neighbors, but also, being well known, among the inhabitants generally in a small way.

She was about 40 and weighed 18 stone. A big shawl was always crossed over her opulent bosom and knotted behind. She had a bright eye, a ready tongue, a heavy fist and a strong head.

Mat was deeply enamored of this gentle lady. Of course Tim was in his confidence, and many an untruthful word in praise of Mat did he drop, as if by accident, in her hearing, and many an unveracious account of his broken heartedness on her account did he sighingly narrate, with the addition of his own private opinion that Mat was dying or would kill himself for love of her. Tim was as loyal a friend as a sober though truthful knight of old.

"Tim," said Mat on the eve of Widow Moloney's birthday, "I want yez to give her this birthday card from me. It's a great red heart, with a skewer sticking in it. That ripresints moine—the heart, I mane. The skewer"——

"It's an arrow, Mat—that's what they do be calling it."

"Well, Tim, an there's a good Irish sound about that same. They can't do without us anyway, you see."

"Sorra a bit, an you want me to be afther giving her that?"

"Yes; I've improved it. I've made it stiff with red lead an put in a few dhrops, as if it was the blood of me heart that was flowing for her, an she's so scornful of me sufferings."

"It's illigant" said Tim, with great admiration.

"An see here, now. I've written some varses to her to the tune of 'O'Shaughnessy's Hat.' Bedad, an they rowl as swaidly as a jig an as deludhering as the craythur."

He sang them over in his rich voice and delicious brogue, and Tim got excited and praised Mat most devoted and. Then they went to the Cobwebs and in due course were violently ejected, had a fight with some strangers about something of which they had no particular recollection, lost each other and finally got home somehow, though not early.

Next morning they arose with unclouded and unaching brows, and Tim started on his mission. Mat waited at the Cobwebs for his return.

Tim sat down on a cold doorstep and reflected.

"Take her a dhirty, painted, twopenny piece of paper with a red lead heart on it! Bedad an begorra an I won't! I'll do better than that, or my name's not Tim Brennan. Mat's a decent bhoy an a dhivil of a poet, but widdies is practical. It takes the likes of me to understand the likes of them."

Within 10 minutes after this soliloquy he was seated in Mrs. Moloney's disordered and unventilated room.

"There it is, Mrs Moloney, dear, an it must go to the heart of yez to rade the hidden m'aning," said he as he pointed to a large, healthy looking pig's fry on the table and a bottle of whisky which was standing beside it. He had suppressed the paper missive as poor, artificial and inexpressive, and out of his devoted friendship and slender purse had bought the "pluck" and the spirits which he presented in Mat's name.

"It's an emblim, honey," continued he. "Here's his heart, in a manner of sp'aking, at your fate—on your dish, I mane. The liver shows that he can't live without yez; the lights, that you're the light of his eyes, an that he longs for yez with every breath, an the flare, that there'll be all the fat in the fire an the very dhivil to pay if ye're unkind to him an refuse him. It's an imblim, my dear—a delicate poetical imblim, bedad!"

"It's beautiful!" said Mrs. Moloney, profoundly touched, as she uncorked the bottle and filled up two large port glasses. Then she added: "An I'll cook it. Tell him to come tonight an help ate it. An come you, too, Tim, and Misthriss Brennan."

So it was all understood.

Tim had, like most of his countrymen, the feelings of a gentleman and the tact of a courtier. That was why he and his wife arrived designedly late, having sent a message that supper was not to wait.

Had they come sooner a slight incident might have been avoided, though possibly it all happened for the best.

For, leaving the tete-a-tete meal and the conversations to be imagined by the reader, the crumpled rose leaf arose in this way. Mat had lit his pipe and had asked the widow how she liked the card and the verses.

She laughed and replied that she didn't know about the verses, except those he had been talking for the last hour; but, as for the card, he ought to know, for he had eaten the half of it.

Upon this, Mat had jumped off his chair and exclaimed: "Then it's a dead man I am, an it's a wake I'll be afther attending, an not a wedding! I thought there was a quare taste about that piece of frizzled fat."

"What does the crature be m'aning at all?" cried she in surprise.

"It's poisoned I am. That heart was all over red lead," said he, falling back into his seat.

"Poisoned, you black hearted villain?" screamed Mrs. Moloney. "Then take that!" and she broke a jug on his head.

It was at this point that the Brennans arrived. Tim promptly knocked Mat down, and then he naturally became curious to know what the ambiguity was about.

"He's poisoned me!" said she between a shriek and a sob.

Tim seized Mat and threw him on an incomplete but unmatched dinner service, part of Mrs. Moloney's stock, which stood in a corner on the floor.

The widow, hearing the crash, smashed a chair on Tim's back, whereupon Mrs. Brennan took her by the hair, and the two women fell into some miscellaneous lots in another corner. Then the neighbors came in and took indiscriminate sides, and matters generally hummed for a short time.

Eventually Tim got an inkling of the difficulty, told them to be quiet and narrated all the circumstances, to the great relief, joy and amusement of all the parties.

A pailful of water and a yard or two of sticking plaster, with a few pins for the women, quickly set things smooth and smiling. Mrs. Moloney made them all welcome, and soon liberal supplies of whisky, porter and tobacco were formulated. Additional candles were lit, illuminating fitfully the front shop, whose contents seemed the embodiment of the confused thoughts of the guests—tables stacked with their legs in the air, cane chairs hanging on the walls, blank gaseliers suspended from the ceiling, while a lighted lamp stood on the floor to prevent stumbling into the business portion of the establishment, and all went merrily. Mrs. Moloney for one brief ecstatic moment sat on Mat's knee, but they were severally picked up and revived, though the chair was pulverized, and Mat sang the "varses" which Tim had produced from his pocket along with the card.

Tim had applauded, wept and gone to sleep in the middle of the song, but the approval which greeted its conclusion, composed as it was of shouts, shrieks, knockings, tears and a free fight in the southeastern corner, effectually woke him.

Somehow after a confused interval of health drinking, recrimination and embracings the party found itself adjourned.

Mat and the widow are to be married so soon as the necessary formalities can be arranged.—Million.

Divorce.

The blue book on marriage and divorce is said to contain singular facts, which may be regarded, however, as touchstones of civilization. In Russia, for instance, people may not wed a fourth time nor after they are 80 years old. In France the wife whose husband objects seriously to her going on the stage makes herself liable to divorce by persisting in her artistic desire. In Germany and Roumania "insurmountable aversion" is enough. But in Portugal civilization touches the high water mark. There if a wife publishes literary works without the husband's consent the law frees him at once.—Atlanta Constitution.

Talking Canary Birds.

The story of the talking canary, which attracted much attention, has brought out other instances of an acquired power of speech in the same bird. In the organ of the Selborne society, where the story originally appeared, there are some further e. . 'ven, and probably many more may be yet forthcoming. Attention has been directed to an account of a talking canary at Norwood which was published in a natural history magazine for 1855. It began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie, kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. Its mistress had been in the habit of kissing the bird and talking to it as if it were a child. After a time the bird repeated other words, until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words:

Again, in 1863, a talking canary was heard and seen at a cottage near Bath. Visitors crowded to the spot to hear and see it. Its vocabulary consisted of such phrases as are generally taught to parrots. A case is also recorded of a speaking canary having been exhibited in Regent street about 20 years ago. The explanation given is that the bird is gifted with unusual powers of imitation and will pick up airs freely which it is in the habit of frequently hearing. Left to itself, it quickly imitates the notes of other birds, and in Germany and the Tyrol canaries are usually placed for this purpose beside the nightingale. In our own country they are often taught to imitate the lark. The words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.—Liverpool Mercury.

Highland and Lowland Scotch.

There is hardly a question as to the very incongruous difference between the characteristics of the highland and the lowland Scotch. James Bonwick, author of "Who Are the Scotch?" asserts that the highlanders are not a Gaelic race, but that they are a miscellaneous mixture of outcast Irish, rebel Northmen, banished Saxons, conspiring Northumbrians, restless Lothianers, unyielding Normans, intriguing barons, hunted freebooters, decayed gentlemen and loafers of all orders. He shows that the highland clans or tribes are, most of them, of comparatively recent origin, and that even Bishop Leslie, in 1578, has no mention whatever of the distinction into tartans.

Bonwick's book, when it appeared, made considerable sensation, as he was very severe in his criticism on such works as the dandy "Vestiarium Scoticum," which gave accounts and even pictures of the tartans of border tribes who never wore tartans or kilts. Sir Walter Scott thought he had traced the work to the counter of one of the great clan tartan warehouses in Edinburgh. What strikes one most in the books and articles which have dealt with highland subjects and clans is the suggested origins beyond which the most careful student fails to reach. The world is under obligations to the legends and traditions of the clans for much very engaging romance and poetry, in consideration of which perhaps we should not be too exacting upon history for origins. —Brooklyn Eagle.

A Pretty Result.

A pair of ordinary stereoscopic transparencies are superposed on the screen as nearly as possible—the pictures not being identical, a perfect registration cannot be obtained—and the light from each picture is polarized, one vertically and the other horizontally, the combined picture being viewed through an analyzer similar to a small opera glass. This analyzer is so constructed that while the right eye can only see the image portrayed in horizontally polarized light the left eye can see only that in vertically polarized light. An important feature, in view of the fact that polarized light is apt to be broken up, is the facing of the screen with dull or matt silver, a long series of experiments having proved this to be the best material.—New York Sun.

A Venice Industry.

Venice owes the accumulation of great wealth from a new industry to one of her natives named Jegunzo. It was in the year 1650 that he observed that the scales of a fish called the bleakfish possessed the property of giving a milky hue to water. After experimenting with it he discovered that when beads were dipped into it and then dried they assumed the appearance of pearls. This covering, however, was easily worn away, and successive experiments led to the manufacture of hollow glass beads, all blown separately, then polished in revolving cylinders and finally coated inside with the pearly liquid, the latter being protected with wax. This branch of industry is carried on in Venice to this day.—Philadelphia Press.

Neatly Turned.

A Frenchman's gallantry to ladies is always equal to an emergency. At a party a gentleman of that race stepped heavily upon the toe of a lady, who looked up with an angry frown.

"Pardon, madame," he said, bowing low, "but I have forgot to bring my microscope."

"Your microscope?"

"But, yes; for to see ze leetle feet of madame."—London Tit-Bits.

STATE OF NEW YORK,

Office of the Secretary of State,

ALBANY, AUGUST 4, 1894.

Pursuant to the provisions of section seven, chapter six hundred and eighty, Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York will be submitted to the people of the said State, for the purpose of voting thereon at the next general election in this State, to be held on the sixth day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-four.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Proposing amendment to article six of the Constitution of this state in relation to County Judges and Court of Sessions in the county of Kings.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

Whereas, At the last session of the Legislature, the following amendment was proposed in the Senate and Assembly, viz:

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That article six of the Constitution of this state be amended by adding thereto the following section:

"§ 32. There shall be in the county of Kings two county judges, each of whose term of office shall be six years. The county judge in office at the adoption of this amendment shall hold office until the expiration of the term for which he was elected. The additional county judge shall be elected at the general election held next after the adoption of this amendment, and his term of office shall begin on the first day of January thereafter. When the official term of any county judge of said county will expire by the efflUxion of time or the disability of age, the successor of such judge shall be chosen at the preceding general election. Vacancies otherwise occuring in said offices shall be filled in the same manner as vacancies in the Supreme Court. The salary of said county judge shall be as now established by law for county judge in said county. Their powers and jurisdiction shall be co-ordinate and co-equal. One or more parts of the county court may be held in said county. The court of sessions in the county of Kings is continued with the powers and jurisdiction it now possesses, and with such additional powers and jurisdiction as may be conferred by the Legislature; it must be held by a county judge of the county, and may hold one or more parts."

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

Too Cool and Breezy—Beer by the Pound—A Very Knowing Dog—Experiments in Skin-Grafting and Operative Surgery:

I've been chilly ever since I saw Monhagens march through North street, this morning, in linen caps and coats. Their rig was altogether too cool and breezy for such a morning. I shiver every time I think of the boys parading, to-night, in that airy uniform, through the wind swept streets of the Electric City, in the mountains of Pennsylvania.

Did you ever hear of selling beer by the pound? Such a custom prevails in the southern part of Louisville, Ky., and all German groceries and saloons are provided with scales, on which the growlers are weighed. For five cents, a pound and a quarter of lager or a pound and three-quarters of common beer is furnished. The Courier-Journal was not able to learn how the practice of selling beer by weight originated, but was told that in one saloon which had been in the same family for several generations, measures had never been used, beer having always been weighed out to customers.

A dog accompanied its master into a New York drug store, yesterday, and at sight of a soda water fountain and a big soda water sign developed all the symptoms of hydrophobia and proceeded to bite a couple of men and muss things up generally. The dog was killed, which seems a great pity, for a dog smart enough to read a soda water sign and know that there was water in the soda fountain, ought to have been kept alive, even if rabid.

The doctors in the Eastern District Hospital, of Brooklyn, are trying the experiment of grafting pieces of the white skin from the stomachs of frogs on a bare spot on the leg of a man who was caught and crushed in the machinery of a sugar refinery. If the experiment succeeds, I wonder if the man will be cold, clammy and generally froglike. Queer things sometimes happen when parts of men and animals are mixed up promiscuous like. There used to be a story current in Pike county, which was vouched for by many old settlers of undoubted veracity, which shows that there are limits beyond which it is not safe to go in interchanging and mixing up parts of human beings and the lower animals. The story, as I recall it, was that a settler, coming one day on a wolf that was ravaging his sheepfold, did battle with the intruder and got the worst of it. When found by neighbors he was lying disembowled among some sheep that had suffered in the same way. He was still alive and the neigebors, stowing away in his abdominal cavity enough of the intestines that were on the ground to fill it, sewed up the wound. The man got well but developed an abnormal appetite for hay, and next season at shearing time a heavier fleece of wool was clipped from him than from any sheep on the place.

BROTHERHOOD OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

A New Division Instituted at Norwich Yesterday—Interesting Public Exercises

A number of members of the Brotherhood of Engineers from this city, Utica, Sidney and Oswego met at Norwich, yesterday, where a new division of the brotherhood was instituted to be known as Norwich Division No, 355, B. L of E. A secret meeting of the order was held and E Belisle was installed as Engineer and W. Murphy as Secretary and Treasurer.

After the installation of officers, a public meeting was held in Brees's Opera House, the opening address being delivered by Congressman Ray, of Norwich, who was followed by John Church, Esq, a prominent lawyer of that place.

Patrick Funnell, known among the brotherhood as "Shandy McGuire," amused the assemblage with his witty sayings, and vocal selections were rendered by ladies from Watertown and Rome, and a quartette from Norwich.

The installing officer was Chief P. Meyer, of Utica, who officiated in the absence of Chief Arthur, who was unexpectedly called to adjust a difficulty at St. Paul between the engineers and a railroad company at that place.

Chief John Puffenberger, E. McNoff and George O'Neal were among those who attended the ceremonies from this city.

SUNDAY SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S.

Dr Darwood Discourses on Christian Zeal and Affirms That He Don't Believe in Ghosts.

At St. Paul's Church, yesterday morning, Rev. Dr. Darwood endeavored to impress his hearers with the importance of christian zeal, and deprecated the alarming absence of this quality among christians generally.

According to the doctor's statements, whenever a person reaches an unusually happy state of religious experience and gives expression to his feelings. "some person is always ready with his little Babcock extinguisher, filled with objections, to put out the fire."

In the evening the doctor delivered the second sermon of his special series on "Our friends beyond the grave," the theme being, "Do they ever return to our world?" Dr. Darwood does not believe the scriptures teach that disembodied sprits ever return to the earth to communicate with their friends, and says years ago he made a standing offer of $50 for any seance which he cannot expose if allowed to make a thorough examination.

"I am not a novice when talking about ghosts," he declared. "I have had hold of these so-called spirits with my materialized hands, and they felt mightily like human beings instead of pure sprits."

Next Sunday evening the doctor's subject will be, "Spiritual or celestial bodies."

AN AMBULANCE FOR THRALL HOSPITAL

Only $150 Needed to Complete the Fund for Its Purchase

A conference of members of the committee appointed some time since to secure subscriptions to a fund for the purchase of an ambulance for Thrall Hospital was held, yesterday, and it was found that the subscriptions amounted to $395. It will require $550 to purchase a well equipped ambulance and the committee is so confident that the necessary amount will be secured, that Drs. Hulett and Fancher were appointed a sub committee to visit New York and examine different ambulances with a view to selecting the one best fitted to our city's needs.

The work of securing the additional subscriptions necessary will be pushed with vigor, and those who have not already subscribed should make a ready response when asken to help along this worthy purpose.

THE NEWBURGH FAIR.

Closed Saturday Noon—The Total Attendance and Receipts—Not a Financial Success

The Newburgh fair closed Saturday afternoon, or rather at noon, for there were but few people present and most of the exhibits were removed by 12 o'clock.

On Friday there were 6 810 paid admissions and 222 carriages. The school children of course did not pay.

Following is the report of attendance as published in the Journal:

First day, Tuesday—Single admissions 171.

Second day, Wednesday—Single admissions 563; horses and carriages 3

Third day, Thursday—Admissions 10 830, horses and carriages 333.

Fourth day, Friday—Single admissions 6,810; horses and carriages 222

Fifth day Saturday—Single admissions 558, horses and carriages 13.

This shows that the receipts at the gate were $4 011. The membership tickets are believed to bring in $1,000; the sales of privileges amounted to $721 50 and the society will get from the State about $400, which would make the total receipts $6,135 50.

The premium list alone will amount to over $4,000 and the Journal figures that it will be necessary for the society to go down in its treasury for $2,000.

The expenses were greatly increased this year on account of the buildings, which were erected for the future rather than the present, as Newburgh intends to keep the fair.

The Chestnut Crop a Failure

As one of the results of the long drouth, the chestnut crop will be a partial failure. The burrs are but little more than half grown and are dropping rapidly. It is thought that there will be less than one-third of the usual crop, and in many places the entire crop is ruined.

What Heroic Efforts They make to Appear Cheerful and Happy.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

How many, think you, have any idea of the suffering endured by so large a proportion of the women of America?

Very few men have the slightest conception of the pain endured by so many women, even those of their own households, of the heroic efforts they make to appear cheerful and happy.

Maid of Orleans

Women ought to be told just where the danger lies, for their whole future may depend upon their knowledge, and how to overcome it.

Lydia E Pinkham solved the mystery after years of experience and study. She unerringly traced the cause of nearly all of woman's suffering to the womb

Other years followed and her Vegetable Compound was given to the world

And now, after years of marvellous success, it is acknowledged the unfailing remedy for all forms of female complaints, ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, irregularity, suppressed or painful menstruations, leucorrhœa, bloating, flooding, backache, nervous prostration, kidney trouble, etc, and is found on the shelves of all respectable druggists.

Such cases as this of Mrs. M. F. Fozzy, of Campello, Mass, speak volumes. She says: "I was very sick. I did not ever expect to get up again Menstruations had stopped suddenly. The pains all through my body were terrible As a last resort I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a box of her Liver Pills. I also used a package of her Sanative Wash.

"Relief came at once and to-day I am a well woman Menstruations regular, no backache, entirely cured of leucorrhœa and bearing down pains. Nothing equals Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A Very Dangerous Railroad Crossing.

The coroner's jury in the cases of Robert Hogan and William E. Hill, of Belleville, who were struck and killed by the Erie milk train at the Avondale crossing on the night of Sept. 14th, rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts, and further found that the "customary precautions," (an alarm gong) were not sufficient at this dangerous crossing.
